Paul R. Briggs
State Policy Director, Midwest and South Carolina, Dominion Energy

Paul is a government affairs professional who has worked on the local, state and federal level. He studied at the University of Dayton and Kent State University before going to work for Congressman Ralph Regula. He then joined the former East Ohio Gas Company doing local government and community affairs in northeast Ohio.

After a move to Columbus and a merger with Dominion Energy, he assumed state government affairs duties for Ohio. His current duties include responsibility for state and local affairs in the Midwest and West Virginia. He manages diverse issues such as nuclear, wind and solar in addition to natural gas and leads the external affairs team for economic development in Ohio.

Paul lives in New Albany, Ohio with his family and spends most of his time running his kids to sports activities around the Midwest.
